TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 9, 1918.

Many faint-hearted chaps, after a few years of the bright lights and lobster palaces, are back helping "pap" on the farm this year. There's a reason.

WHY NOT?

An English captain made this statement at Pitman, N. J., Sunday evening: "Men who are so clever at rolling cigarettes should take a hand at rolling Red Cross bandages."

THE LADY AND THE TIGER

The first enrollment of New York City's women voters has just taken place and 279,566 of them have formally taken on party affiliation. Naturally, the Democratic party, which is in the ascendancy, takes the larger share, gaining 164,722 to the Republicans' 96,749. Whether this means the continued domination of Tammany Hall or whether the new voters will exercise their privileges to the purging of the Democratic organization remains to be seen.

THE ROAD BOND AMENDMENT

From now until November there will be more or less discussion or the amendment providing for a 50,000,000 issue of road bonds which will be voted on at the November election and the fullest discussion is desirable. We have learned the value of good roads and the average man is now willing to do most anything to further improve our highways in order that travel may become easier and the markets be brought nearer to our doors. We have learned also that fifty million dollars is a very small sum and an amount that the State of Pennsylvania can spend without noticing. Especially so in view of the fact that Pennsylvania is without a state debt and this is more than many of our neighbor states can say.

The project outlined for the State Highway Department at its organization has not been completed. From the outset the Department was a political football and its management was booted around from one favorite to another to such an extent that five years ago the voters refused to ratify the bond issue. But that was five years ago and it is no indication that the same thing is going to be done this year. There are many features connected with the bond issue this time that will demand consideration, mainly the fact that the sponsor of the original highway system, Wm. C. Sproul, is a candidate for governor with absolute surety of election. The highway system or plan was a big comprehensive dream of this business man and statesman and should the bond issue pass, the administration of this large fund will be in the hands of a man appointed by the father of the project. It is quite natural that the Highway Department will come in for the most careful administration under these circumstances. We should help Mr. Sproul to put into concrete, brick and macadam his masterful ideas and pave this great commonwealth with good roads from every angle.

FOUND YANKS IN CARE OF HIS HOME

By Fred S. Ferguson
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
With The American Forces in Picardy, June 18. (By Mail).—A little French sergeant came home to Picardy the other day to see the house where he was born, where his father and mother, and his grandmother and grandfather lived.

At the big fireplace where his grandmother used to sit he saw American officers, warming up from the evening chill.

As he stood in the doorway he looked just to the right and there were piles of sandbags in front of the entrance to the cellar. The floor of the house was about a foot higher than when he knew it. In every room unheated trunks of trees a foot in diameter were sunk in the brick floor, and supported the ceiling. He went to the attic. More sandbags. Two great layers were piled even over the entire top floor. Then he looked about at strange objects in the corner. They were heirlooms, but so wrapped that he could not recognize them at first. Old pictures, woodcuts, old glass flower cases—everything that was dear to him and to his father and mother had been carefully put away.

The little sergeant smiled. Being a soldier he knew what all the sandbags, the raising of the floor, and the supports meant. The house had been made as safe as possible from shell-fire. It is just a little house of four rooms in a village that is now under the fire of the German guns. The sergeant's people fled when the Boche thrust forward and captured Montdidier. He had been fighting in another sector and obtained permission to visit his home to see how things at home were, with none of the family to look after them. When he left to return to his regiment he was happy—as happy as a man can be when war has forced his father and mother to flee from the dearest place to them on earth.

CANADIANS REAL FOOD PATRIOTS

(By United Press)
Ottawa, Can., July 9.—French pastry is outlawed in Canada.

The latest "Summary of Orders," just issued by the Canada Food Board says it is illegal to make the toothsome dainties, or to make biscuits with icing between layers or plastered over the exterior, or to make candy at home for home consumption.

Until August 1 candy factories are restricted to 50 per cent. of the quantity of sugar used last year. No wheat flour may be used by anybody in manufacture of candy.

No wheat or wheat products except bran or shorts may be fed to livestock.

Doughnuts are forbidden. Manufacturers may use 80 per cent. wheat flour in biscuits and in such sweet breads as are still permitted, and 90 per cent wheat flour in soda biscuits.

Wheatless and meatless days and meals are prescribed from time to time, according to condition of the supply, as in the United States.

All food dealers are licensed, as in the United States and the quantities of foods they may sell to customers at one time depend upon the distance of the householder from the source of supplies.

Anyone who wishes to indulge his taste for French pastry, or cannot resist the call of the doughnut, may have his way for a little matter of a fine ranging from $100 to $1,000, or a jail sentence up to three months, or both.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Harrisburg, July 7.—The Pennsylvania Old Age Pension commission which has been investigating the subject in various states of the union and in foreign countries as far as the war permits, plans to resume its hearings shortly.

In a statement issued by the commission, it is declared that inquiries have shown the problem of caring for the aged in Pennsylvania is essentially different from that in other states owing to diversified industries.

Appealing to the Backslider

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.
Dean of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT.—On Israel, return unto the Lord thy God, for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity. Take with you words and come to the Lord: say unto him, Take away our iniquity and receive us graciously: so will we render unto thee the calves of our lips. I will heal their backsliding. I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away.—Hosea 14:1-4.

I.—Backsliding in a religious sense is falling away from one's profession, even though it is not always visible to the eyes of men.

A Christian need not blaspheme, nor commit murder, nor theft, nor adultery, to be a backslider. He need only exalt his own reason above the Word of God, or neglect the house of God, or begin to fellowship with the people who do not know God, to make him a backslider. Backsliding imperils the salvation of the soul, for although the Bible teaches the perseverance of the saints it also teaches the perseverance of the sinners. While Christ teaches that the sheep whom the Father hath given him shall never be plucked out of his hand, yet the evidence that we are his sheep is that we hear his voice and follow him.

The backslider not only imperils the salvation of his soul, but also makes havoc of his peace from day to day, for gloomy thoughts and self-reproach and an uneasy conscience possess him. This must be so because even if he does not doubt his salvation at the last, he must know that the building he is erecting on his foundation is one of wood, hay and stubble, that cannot stand the test of the fire which is to try every Christian's work of what sort it is in the day of reckoning that is coming.

The backslider is a serious menace to other Christians and a great obstacle in the way of those that are unsaved. Lord Byron is on record as daring his outcast feelings against Christianity from having witnessed how little some of its votaries were actuated by the spirit of love they professed; and David Brainerd, the great missionary to the American Indians, tells how the savages in Delaware refused to listen to him because of the bad treatment they had received from some who called themselves Christians.

II.—But for the pious backslider there is encouragement and hope. His is not an unpardonable offense, since God is ever calling upon his people to return to him on the ground of the reconciliation which Christ made for them on the cross. In the text he is doing that in Israel's case, reminding them that they had not been thrust away by him, but that they had fallen by their own iniquity. It was their own fault, and yet he tells them how they might come back, "Take with you words," he says, "and turn to the Lord." He even puts the words in their mouths telling them just what to say. They are to say, "Take away iniquity and receive us graciously." And they are to promise him that they will render him the praise and gratitude of their hearts, for that really is what is meant by "the calves of our lips."

It is not the works of our self-righteousness that God desires in order to bring about our restoration, but rather broken and contrite hearts. Our works will follow our words if the latter are sincere and true. In other words, God commences where man would end. Man would want to recall his former life before he would return to God. But God would have him return first and then he will find that his former life has already been recalled.

Oh, is there someone in whose heart this touches a responsive chord? Some Christian whose life has been crusted over with the cares and pleasures of this world, but with whom God's Spirit is now pleading? Let him venture wholly on the love of God in Christ who will not "quench the smoking flax nor break the bruised reed." We say unto him in the language of the prophet, "Come, return unto the Lord for he hath torn and he will heal you; he hath smitten and he will bind you up."

III.—But let not this exhortation be concluded without a loving word of warning to those who are not backsliders, but who may be. You have stood by the sea and watched the waves break upon the shore. For a while they all seemed to touch the same point. At first it was impossible to say whether the tide was going out or coming in. You had to watch closely for a while to determine. By and by the ebbing waters told the tale.

It is so with backsliding and backsliders. The process of declension is very gradual. No Christian ever substituted vice for virtue by a sudden resolution of mind. The slipping away began underneath, while the surface appearance remained unchanged. Prayer became formal, the eye of faith grew dim, self-indulgence gained ground, and at last one could no longer take knowledge of him that he had been with Jesus. Oh, watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

L. D. Kerns, one of the prominent citizens of Brockport, visited with friends in town over Sunday. His principal object in coming to Curwensville was to welcome to his old home T. F. McClure, an old school mate and neighbor. Both gentlemen called on the Progress representative Sunday, he also being a school mate of the two.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. McClure, who have been in town since the 4th, left yesterday for their western home in Litchfield, Minn. This was Mrs. McClure's first visit to her husband's home town and as she expressed it, thought it was the cleanest and most beautiful village she had ever visited.

Dr. D. R. Hawkins, a son of the Rev. Hawkins, came to Curwensville last Friday expecting to spend several weeks visiting his home folks. He is a lieutenant and established at Hoboken, N. J. Yesterday he received a telegram from his superiors to report at headquarters at once and without delay. He left over the P. R. R. Monday afternoon. He was of the opinion that the unexpected summons meant nothing more nor less than that he was to be sent to France at once.

Walter Fullerton left yesterday for Pittsburgh where he will spend the next two weeks circulating among relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. David F. Reid have gone to York Pa., where they will spend the next ten days visiting relatives and acquaintances.

Mrs. Calvin Bilger, who is ill in Bloom township, spent the Sabbath with her son, Harry Bilger and wife in this place.

Mrs. J. G. Fullerton accompanied her niece, Miss Agnes Reid, to Clearfield yesterday, the young lady being on her return to her home at Glenrichy after a pleasant visit with her aunt.

Samuel Caldwell, who lately returned from Washington state after an absence of over thirty years, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. L. B. Norris several days this week. He noted a number of improvements for the better about town during from the time of his sojourn in the west until his return.

Curwensville people have commenced to speculate on the question of what action the borough authorities will take on buying the Ruffsman water plant. Some action ought to be taken one way or the other pretty soon, either purchase the plant outright or compel the present owners to keep the line in better repair. There are several brakes in main right now that should receive attention, one being at the corner of Pine and State streets. There is one way to determine whether the rank and file of the tax payers want ownership or not and that would be to put the question to a vote. The price asked for the plant is entirely beyond reason, but we believe if the borough meant business a lower price could be secured from the company. It is also true that it would take considerable money to put the plant in first class running shape, but if the company decide to arise the water rentals, it would be just as long as it is broad. There are many in this town who would like to see this water question settled one way or the other pretty soon, and the only way that it can be done is to give them a chance to vote on it.

Even with their great record of victories the Bridgeport Eastern league leaders can't afford to falter for a second. Right at their heels are New London and Providence, and both are going strong.

TYLER SHOOTING REMAINS MYSTERY

Domenic Rizzo, a well known resident of Tyler, this county, died at the DuBois hospital at 11:45 Monday morning from the effects of a murderous assault made upon him Sunday evening by his brother in law Tony Pelatino.

The reason for the shooting appears to be more or less of a mystery.

It is declared that Sunday afternoon Rizzo, who is Mrs. Pelatino's brother, invited Pelatino into Rizzo's house for a drink but the latter refused, declaring he had money to pay debts. Last evening Rizzo lost his horse and with his four sons started to search for it. When he passed Pelatino's home, he entered it and is declared to have inquired as to Pelatino's actions in refusing to accept the drink offered in the afternoon.

It is said that Pelatino, without further cause, opened fire. Five shots were fired and four of them took effect. One hit Rizzo in the mouth, another went through the center of the neck left to right, another entered the ear and still another punctured the intestines in a half dozen places.

Both principals were Italian. Rizzo was 38 years old and is survived by his wife and seven children. Pelatino is said to be 31 and has a wife and seven children too.

The murder occurred about 9 o'clock Sunday evening and District Attorney Arnold and Sheriff Gorman were not notified of the happening until about 9 o'clock. Monday morning Sheriff Gorman started for Tyler at once and when he arrived there enlisted the services of Manager Thomas of the company store and the work of rounding up the murderer began. All the towns in the neighborhood were notified by the sheriff by telephone and finally Chief of Police Mothersbaugh of Driftwood discovered that a strange man thought to be a forger had bought a ticket for Buffalo at the Driftwood station that morning.

The authorities at Emporium were asked to search the train on its arrival there and detain the person traveling on ticket No 201. This man proved to be Pelatino who was brought back to Driftwood on the next train and when Sheriff Gorman took him into custody.

Pelatino admitted the shooting saying he shot "three, four times." He would give no reason for the shooting. Following the difficulty Pelatino shaved off his mustache, changed his clothing and walked the twenty-eight miles between Tyler and Driftwood Sunday night and early Monday morning.

With this murder Clearfield county now has on her list seven different unavenged killings, two of which are from Tyler. The entire seven were committed during the past six months. Swanton, who killed two men at Curwensville and Pelatino, however, are the only two murderers in jail. The man charged with the first Tyler killing is out on bail, as are the two suspects in the Stanley affair while the Woodland and Kelleysville murders have not been arrested as yet.

Rizzo and Pelatino were double brothers-in-law each having married the other's sister.

TANKS AID FRENCH IN ADVANCE AT COMPEIGNE

Paris, July 9.—Striking between Montdidier and the Oise, French troops with the aid of tanks advanced on a front of 2 1-2 miles northwest of Compeigne this morning. German counter attacks were repulsed and the French maintained their gains. Four hundred fifty prisoners were taken. "Between Montdidier and the Oise the French troops effected a local operation at 3.30 a.m. west of Antheuil, 6 miles northwest of Soissons. With the help of tanks the French penetrated the German lines. They took Porte and Les Loges farm and advanced 1800 meters. The German counter attacks at Les Loges farm were repulsed. The French maintained all their gains, taking 450 prisoners, including 14 officers. South of the Oise there was active artillery fire. At Chavigny farm, 8 miles southwest of Soissons we accelerated our progress, taking 20 prisoners including 1 officer. Northwest of Chateau-Thierry and Hill 204 there was active cannonading. In the Champagne French patrols took prisoners."

London, July 9.—German artillery was active along the Somme, Field Marshal Haig reported today. Enemy artillery has been active again against positions south of the Somme, the statement said. During the night the enemy launched attacks against Arras. The French captured a machine gun and a few prisoners.

AUSTRIANS REFUSE VON BEULOW AS GENERALISSIMO OF THEIR ARMIES

Rome, July 9.—The Austrians have refused to accept a German generalissimo to direct operations on the Italian front, according to advices received here today. Recent reports said that the general staff of Austria wants General von Buelow, who directed the former Austrian offensive, to be made commander in chief of the Austrian army. Later it was said that General Ludendorff had hurried to Austrian headquarters to make von Buelow's appointment effective.

GERMAN SOCIALIST LEADER DOUBTS SUCCESS OF OFFENSIVE ON ALLIES

Paris, July 9.—Resumption of the German offensive is necessary but its result is doubtful, Herr Stroebel, an Independent Socialist, admitted in the Prussian Landtag, according to a Zurich dispatch to the Matin today.

Stroebel declared that "in the spring drive the German losses were more than 100,000 in killed alone. The losses in the next phase of the drive were probably higher. Over 900,000 Americans are in France. These will balance the Allied losses and the German gains from man power from other new drafts and from the release of men from the eastern front. Several million more will come unless we Germans rid the government of the war politicians," Stroebel said.

Copenhagen, July 9.—The time has now come to openly discuss peace, declared von Bernhard, writer in the Vorwaerts Zeitung.

Amsterdam, July 9.—Germany and Austro-Hungary will be subjected to more food reductions and free trade, von Waldow announced in the German Reichstag Saturday, it was learned today. It will be some time before large consignments of corn will arrive from Ukraine. The meat rations will be reduced as soon as the potato and bread rations can be increased. Replying to Waldow, Herr Wels, Socialist leader, declared that further deterioration of the food supply will be unbearable. The wages of the workers will not buy adequate food even now and unemployment is increasing. If the situation continues the strike of January will be repeated. The Tageblatt announced that beginning August 1, there will be one meatless week a month.

WILSON AND HIS CABINET SELECTING MEN FOR VITAL MISSION TO RUSSIA

By Robert J. Bender

Washington, July 9.—Already decided upon the general course of aiding Russia, President Wilson today was to counsel with his cabinet as to the personnel of the mission to be sent. This mission will be backed by a police force of allied soldiers. Supplies will be sent to Russian soon after the military police arrive. Each cabinet member is to submit names of able men to form the mission and from the list the President will select his choice. He desires to select those Americans whose sympathy and training will help in putting Russia on a war footing.

GROOM FORGOT HIS LICENSE: WEDDING DELAYED A DAY

A good story regarding the trials and tribulations which beset a matrimonially inclined young couple from Surveyor has just leaked out. It seems that Byron Cole and Miss Julie Wilson, well known Surveyor young people, recently discovered that they were "just created for each other" and it was their bounden duty following this discovery to go and "have the knot tied".

The day decided upon for this momentous occurrence in their young lives was the nation's Independence day. Accordingly bride and groom came to Clearfield and presenting themselves before Recorder Chase demanded that he issue to them the required legal permit to wed. The Recorder got busy and started to make out the papers. When he got to the question of ages a snag was encountered. The groom announced that he was 19 while the bride-to-be blushingly admitted that she was but 15 summers had tanned her fair cheeks. When the Recorder was informed that they had neglected the formality of getting parental consent to the union in writing he informed the loving twain that there was "nothing doing" in the marriage license line.

The young people accepted the legal ultimatum gracefully and requisitioning their Henry Ford beat it back for home and mother and help. They got it, too, and on the afternoon of July 3d they came back with their parents' consent duly acknowledged before Squire Kirkwood and the marriage license was promptly issued. After a brief shopping tour they returned home to await the great day which had already been fixed for the morrow.

True to form, and with their "in-laws" hitting on every cylinder, the nappy young couple again essaying the matrimonial journey, drove to Clearfield on the afternoon of the Fourth and presented themselves before Rev. Hartman of Trinity church and made a declaration of their intentions. The Reverend gentleman quickly set the stage for the happy occasion and when everything was in readiness asked for the marriage license.

Talk about what war is. Wow! The groom had inadvertently forgotten to put the coveted document in his pocket and there they were, the deck all cleared for action and "the orders" fifteen miles away.

There was nothing to do but halt the proceedings and go after it, which was done. The loving couple were not to be separated for a minute and when the groom-to-be started for the Ford and Surveyor his intended went right with him. And it was a good thing she did. When they reached home, got the paper and attempted to start back in the evening the machine refused to go and the wedding therefore had to be adjourned until the next day.

Friday morning the young couple, reached town early and anxious and heading for Trinity parsonage were soon made one. But it was some strenuous time.

LENINE CAUSES ARREST OF MEMBERS OF KERENSKY CABINET

London, July 9.—Premier Lenin has caused the arrest of several members of the Kerensky cabinet according to Moscow dispatches received today. Martial law has been proclaimed in Moscow.

The above dispatch would seem to bear out the Bolshevik claims that the counter revolution in Moscow had been suppressed and would indicate that the Social revolution was instigated by Kerensky's leaders.

Well, here it is at last (?). The pig is out of the poke—perhaps. At any rate the following letter addressed to Trustees, Home for Incurables, Clearfield, Pa. is evidence of a certain nature and character that the effete Old Town Road residence section is to be invaded by hopeless incurables of some description. We pass it on for what it is worth and reserve the real explanation for some future date.

"Gentlemen: On visit of our inspector, Mr. Sharp, to Home for Incurables, Old Town Road, Northeast Side, Clearfield, Pa. July 2nd, he was unable to gain admission.

ITALY WINS IN ALBANIA

Rome, July 9.—The Italian offensive in Albania is growing and the Austrians are being pressed back everywhere, the Italian war office announced today. A British monitor co-operated by bombing enemy positions at sea. Italian cavalry have succeeded in splitting the Austrian lines and driving the enemy to the rear. Thirteen hundred prisoners and a great quantity of war materials have been taken. In Albania the attack is continuing, the statement said.

STOCKS AGAIN IRREGULAR

By United Press
New York, July 9.—The stock market opened irregular again today. United States Steel opened at 106½ and Marines, preferred at 103½.

Rails accumulated strength during the early trading. Reading was up ¾ to 93½. St. Paul, preferred reached 77 up 3 points. United States steel maintained its stand of 106 to 106½.

Abandoning expectations of an early German offensive the street this afternoon turned its attention toward buying; rushing steel to 107½. Other issues gained strength.

TWENTY-FIVE ARE KILLED IN WRECK

By United Press
Nashville, Tenn., July 9.—About 25 persons were killed and 75 injured when two Nashville-Chattanooga and St. Louis passenger trains crashed near Bosley Springs at 7 a. m. today. Fire immediately broke out and many of the passengers who were not killed outright in the collision were burned to death and suffocated in the flames. Early this afternoon railway officials estimated the dead alone at between 75 and 100. A misunderstanding of orders is believed to be responsible for the wreck. A relief train immediately rushed to the scene from Nashville with doctors, nurses, firemen and first aid equipment. Bodies fill every morgue in Nashville.

ELECTRICIANS AND BUGLERS WANTED

Hon. Joseph E. Phillips, who is County Director of the Public Service Reserve for Clearfield county, is in receipt of a couple of urgent calls from the Department of Labor U. S. Public Reserve, for men for government service. The first call is for buglers for overseas service, and is as follows:

Philadelphia Pa., July 5, 1918.
"The Government needs at once fifteen (15) Buglers for overseas service. This need will doubtless have to be met by appealing to the patriotism of boys from 18 to 20 inclusive, the reason being that buglers from bands throughout the country have enlisted for service either in the camps or on the other side.

The regular army allowance will be paid for this service."

The second call is for experienced men who are asked to enroll for government service in this country. The need for these men is very urgent and a man in this service will be entitled to as much credit as a man in any other branch of war activity. The call follows:—

The Government is in need of Steam Engineers and Electricians for service in the United States.

THE CALL IS URGENT!

Men may enlist for and enlisted men may be inducted into this service. All will enter as privates and receive the regular compensation.

This is an excellent opportunity for first-class mechanics in the trades above mentioned to follow their trades in the service.

No limit is placed on the number of men wanted.

The Electricians will be stationed at Lakehurst, New Jersey.

A TALE OF THE OLD ORIGINAL SUSQUEHANNA HOUSE

By Lew J. LaPorte

At this late day the early history of Curwensville and its old landmarks are almost extinct, as the men who were acquainted with them and their locations are either dead years ago or moved to other localities. Such of it as is written here was gleaned from the memory of men some thirty odd years ago by the writer.

One of the old time buildings that we have been asked a number of times to write about by Progress readers, is the "old and original Susquehanna House" long since passed into oblivion and unknown to the present generation.

This far famed hostelry was erected some time prior to the year 1800 and by whom it is not quite clear, tradition having Paul Clover for its first manager and proprietor. At the time of its erection, however, there were not more than two or three shacks or buildings in what is now known as Curwensville borough and only a rough mountain trail leading from this point to the western boundary of the state. The original building stood close up against the hill, nearly opposite to where the present building now stands at the river, and was surrounded by an almost impenetrable forest of virgin pine, hemlock and hardwood timber. After the building was put in running order, it became one of the stopping places for those who were hardy and brave enough to penetrate the forest in search of new homes and also to travelers who desired to reach the western frontier of the state of the borders of the territory of Ohio.

The building was a large one for those days, rudely constructed from round logs and sided up with clapboards hewn out by hand, as at this early date there was no such convenience as a saw mill nearer than "east of the mountains" which meant some point over in Centre county. Loop holes for shooting through if necessary were plentiful and the windows, high above the ground, were made from greased paper, but some years before the building was dismantled and the neighborhood began to take on a cosmopolitan appearance glass windows were put in, having been brought all the way from Philadelphia.

It was here in this hotel that Giles, who was murdered by a gambler named Monks, near the top of Anderson creek hill, in 1807 stopped. Giles at his dinner on the day of the murder, before proceeding on his way west, and Monks ate his supper here after committing the murder and making his escape east. He was finally captured after a hot chase some fifty miles from the scene of his unwarranted and ghastly crime, brought to Bellefonte (Clearfield and Centre counties were all in one at that time) tried and convicted of murder in the first degree and paid the penalty on the gallows.

During the construction of this "tavern" bands of roving Indians passed through from their hunting grounds farther east, and stopped several days at a time to watch the progress made on this wonderful wigwam. Several times on their return from the yearly pow-wow with other Indians hailing from the north country and the Great Lakes, they became obstreperous and threatened to destroy the big teepee, as they claimed that it contained bad medicine and was going to be used as a prison pen in which to confine them when they disobeyed the laws of the Great Father or drank too much fire water. Tradition also has it that on one occasion when a band of several hundred Indians of the Delaware tribe passed this way, on their return from one of the big down river gatherings, and had imbibed a little too freely in fire water stolen from one of the settlers, they actually did attack the tavern, but there happened to be a goodly number of settlers gathered there indulging in some sort of a celebration, and they jumped in among the red brethren and with hickory withes, gave them such a warm reception that the attack failed in so much as doing any harm to the building was concerned. The Red Men took to the woods vowing that they would return later and kill and scalp all who were concerned in "hasting their hides" with switches. They were whipped like a lot of old squaws, and the result to the braves could only be wiped out in making the river run red with the blood of the white man. It goes without saying that their threat was never carried out, and in fact when they had an occasion to pass down river the next year they took a trail that would not lead them past the scene of their humiliation. After the year 1820 an Indian was seldom ever seen in these parts, unless it was a very aged or infirm one who was on his way to his old haunts to visit his dead or to die that he might mingle his bones with those of his kindred and tribe who were walking with the "great spirit" and to recount his deeds of war valor with theirs.

This "old tavern" was the scene of hundreds of fistic encounters among the hardy woodsmen and pioneers when they assembled on festival occasions, and later on "training" days (every male between the ages of 18 and 45 years had to assemble at least one day in a year for military training and drill). On one occasion we find that William McNaull, who was a Quaker, and did not believe in militarism, was fined two bushel of wheat for his non appearance for military duty.

Some hard fights were pulled off on these days just for the simple reason to "see who was the best man" there being no animosity between the combatants prior to or after these engagements of Herculean strength. Not much science was used in these festivities and the battles were waged along the lines of "main strength and awkwardness and endurance." It is said that a fight came off there on one of the festival days in which two of the most powerful men that was ever in this section in the early day were pitted against each other. So hard did they strike one another that both would go to the ground at the same time. The battle lasted for more than an hour, and both men were so exhausted with the struggle that they were carried into the hotel and it was several days ere either of the gladiators was able to return to their homes. This is only one instance of the many brutal brawls that took place in and around the "old tavern."

Nearly every man made his own liquor in those days and each individual was used to taking his "saw-up" dram.

No record was ever kept of the different individuals who kept this hostelry from year to year. As settlers began to grow in numbers, the popularity of this tavern began to wane and a new and more commodious and up-to-date structure was built 1857 on the other side of the highway and was called by the same title as the first and original Susquehanna house. The old structure was abandoned for the new, and it soon fell into decay and kept falling a log at a time to the ground until at last in the year 1875 the Pennsylvania railroad being in course of construction wiped out the last land mark and today there are but a few people living in or near Curwensville who can point out its exact location. Thus it is that the march of progress makes vast changes in historical events, and unless they have been recorded from time to time are entirely lost to the coming generations, and only referred to as a myth or legend.

Addenda.—The new Susquehanna House was erected in 1857 by George Thorn, William Irvin being the owner. The first tenant was a man named Johnston, who came here from Phillipsburg and took charge and conducted the same for some years, he bringing the late William C. Tuttle here with him, and who remained in this vicinity until he died. During the year 1907 was the last attempt to conduct the building as a hotel, and at that time McLaughlin Brothers were the tenants. Finally the building was sold to O. J. Baker, who converted same into dwelling flats and thus it is being occupied.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION BLOCKED TEMPORARILY

By United Press
Washington, July 9.—The wets today temporarily blocked consideration of the war time prohibition amendment. Senator Penrose raised the point of order against the prohibition amendment to the emergency food act on the ground that it is general legislation in an appropriation bill. Senator Saulsbury who was presiding did not wish to decide the point of order immediately and the net effect was the postponement of consideration on the question.

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 9, 1918.

Many faint-hearted chaps, after a few years of the bright lights and lobster palaces, are back helping "pap" on the farm this year. There's a reason.

WHY NOT?

An English captain made this statement at Pitman, N. J., Sunday evening: "Men who are so clever at rolling cigarettes should take a hand at rolling Red Cross bandages."

THE LADY AND THE TIGER

The first enrollment of New York City's women voters has just taken place and 279,566 of them have formally taken on party affiliation. Naturally, the Democratic party, which is in the ascendancy, takes the larger share, gaining 164,722 to the Republicans' 96,749. Whether this means the continued domination of Tammany Hall or whether the new voters will exercise their privileges to the purging of the Democratic organization remains to be seen.

THE ROAD BOND AMENDMENT

From now until November there will be more or less discussion or the amendment providing for a 50,000,000 issue of road bonds which will be voted on at the November election and the fullest discussion is desirable. We have learned the value of good roads and the average man is now willing to do most anything to further improve our highways in order that travel may become easier and the markets be brought nearer to our doors. We have learned also that fifty million dollars is a very small sum and an amount that the State of Pennsylvania can spend without noticing. Especially so in view of the fact that Pennsylvania is without a state debt and this is more than many of our neighbor states can say.

The project outlined for the State Highway Department at its organization has not been completed. From the outset the Department was a political football and its management was booted around from one favorite to another to such an extent that five years ago the voters refused to ratify the bond issue. But that was five years ago and it is no indication that the same thing is going to be done this year. There are many features connected with the bond issue this time that will demand consideration, mainly the fact that the sponsor of the original highway system, Wm. C. Sproul, is a candidate for governor with absolute surety of election. The highway system or plan was a big comprehensive dream of this business man and statesman and should the bond issue pass, the administration of this large fund will be in the hands of a man appointed by the father of the project. It is quite natural that the Highway Department will come in for the most careful administration under these circumstances. We should help Mr. Sproul to put into concrete, brick and macadam his masterful ideas and pave this great commonwealth with good roads from every angle.

FOUND YANKS IN CARE OF HIS HOME

By Fred S. Ferguson
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
With The American Forces in Picardy, June 18. (By Mail).—A little French sergeant came home to Picardy the other day to see the house where he was born, where his father and mother, and his grandmother and grandfather lived.

At the big fireplace where his grandmother used to sit he saw American officers, warming up from the evening chill.

As he stood in the doorway he looked just to the right and there were piles of sandbags in front of the entrance to the cellar. The floor of the house was about a foot higher than when he knew it. In every room unheated trunks of trees a foot in diameter were sunk in the brick floor, and supported the ceiling. He went to the attic. More sandbags. Two great layers were piled even over the entire top floor. Then he looked about at strange objects in the corner. They were heirlooms, but so wrapped that he could not recognize them at first. Old pictures, woodcuts, old glass flower cases—everything that was dear to him and to his father and mother had been carefully put away.

The little sergeant smiled. Being a soldier he knew what all the sandbags, the raising of the floor, and the supports meant. The house had been made as safe as possible from shell-fire. It is just a little house of four rooms in a village that is now under the fire of the German guns. The sergeant's people fled when the Boche thrust forward and captured Montdidier. He had been fighting in another sector and obtained permission to visit his home to see how things at home were, with none of the family to look after them. When he left to return to his regiment he was happy—as happy as a man can be when war has forced his father and mother to flee from the dearest place to them on earth.

CANADIANS REAL FOOD PATRIOTS

(By United Press)
Ottawa, Can., July 9.—French pastry is outlawed in Canada.

The latest "Summary of Orders," just issued by the Canada Food Board says it is illegal to make the toothsome dainties, or to make biscuits with icing between layers or plastered over the exterior, or to make candy at home for home consumption.

Until August 1 candy factories are restricted to 50 per cent. of the quantity of sugar used last year. No wheat flour may be used by anybody in manufacture of candy.

No wheat or wheat products except bran or shorts may be fed to livestock.

Doughnuts are forbidden. Manufacturers may use 80 per cent. wheat flour in biscuits and in such sweet breads as are still permitted, and 90 per cent. wheat flour in soda biscuits.

Wheatless and meatless days and meals are prescribed from time to time, according to condition of the supply, as in the United States.

All food dealers are licensed, as in the United States and the quantities of foods they may sell to customers at one time depend upon the distance of the householder from the source of supplies.

Anyone who wishes to indulge his taste for French pastry, or cannot resist the call of the doughnut, may have his way for a little matter of a fine ranging from $100 to $1,000, or a jail sentence up to three months, or both.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Harrisburg, July 7.—The Pennsylvania Old Age Pension commission which has been investigating the subject in various states of the union and in foreign countries as far as the war permits, plans to resume its hearings shortly.

In a statement issued by the commission, it is declared that inquiries have shown the problem of caring for the aged in Pennsylvania is essentially different from that in other states owing to diversified industries.

Appealing to the Backslider

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.
Dean of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT.—On Israel, return unto the Lord thy God, for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity. Take with you words and come to the Lord: say unto him, Take away our iniquity and receive us graciously: so will we render unto thee the calves of our lips. I will heal their backsliding. I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away.—Hosea 14:1-4.

I.—Backsliding in a religious sense is falling away from one's profession, even though it is not always visible to the eyes of men.

A Christian need not blaspheme, nor commit murder, nor theft, nor adultery, to be a backslider. He need only exalt his own reason above the Word of God, or neglect the house of God, or begin to fellowship with the people who do not know God, to make him a backslider. Backsliding imperils the salvation of the soul, for although the Bible teaches the perseverance of the saints it also teaches the perseverance of the sinners. While Christ teaches that the sheep whom the Father hath given him shall never be plucked out of his hand, yet the evidence that we are his sheep is that we hear his voice and follow him.

The backslider not only imperils the salvation of his soul, but also makes havoc of his peace from day to day, for gloomy thoughts and self-reproach and an uneasy conscience possess him. This must be so because even if he does not doubt his salvation at the last, he must know that the building he is erecting on his foundation is one of wood, hay and stubble, that cannot stand the test of the fire which is to try every Christian's work of what sort it is in the day of reckoning that is coming.

The backslider is a serious menace to other Christians and a great obstacle in the way of those that are unsaved. Lord Byron is on record as saying his earliest feelings against Christianity from having witnessed how little some of its votaries were actuated by the spirit of love they professed; and David Brainerd, the great missionary to the American Indians, tells how the savages in Delaware refused to listen to him because of the bad treatment they had received from some who called themselves Christians.

II.—But for the pious backslider there is encouragement and hope. His is not an unpardonable offense, since God is ever calling upon his people to return to him on the ground of the reconciliation which Christ made for them on the cross. In the text he is doing that in Israel's case, reminding them that they had not been thrust away by him, but that they had fallen by their own iniquity. It was their own fault, and yet he tells them how they might come back, "Take with you words," he says, "and turn to the Lord." He even puts the words in their mouths telling them just what to say. They are to say, "Take away iniquity and receive us graciously." And they are to promise him that they will render him the praise and gratitude of their hearts, for that really is what is meant by "the calves of our lips."

It is not the works of our self-righteousness that God desires in order to bring about our restoration, but rather broken and contrite hearts. Our works will follow our words if the latter are sincere and true. In other words, God commences where man would end. Man would want to recall his former life before he would return to God. But God would have him return first and then he will find that his former life has already been recalled.

Oh, is there someone in whose heart this touches a responsive chord? Some Christian whose life has been entrusted over with the cares and pleasures of this world, but with whom God's Spirit is now pleading? Let him venture wholly on the love of God in Christ who will not "quench the smoking flax nor break the bruised reed." We say unto him in the language of the prophet, "Come, return unto the Lord for he hath torn and he will heal you; he hath smitten and he will bind you up."

III.—But let not this exhortation be concluded without a loving word of warning to those who are not backsliders, but who may be. You have stood by the sea and watched the waves break upon the shore. For a while they all seemed to touch the same point. At first it was impossible to say whether the tide was going out or coming in. You had to watch closely for a while to determine. By and by the ebbing waters told the tale.

It is so with backsliding and backsliders. The process of declension is very gradual. No Christian ever substituted vice for virtue by a sudden resolution of mind. The slipping away began underneath, while the surface appearance remained unchanged. Prayer became formal, the eye of faith grew dim, self-indulgence gained ground, and at last one could no longer take knowledge of him that he had been with Jesus. Oh, watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation.

Camp Lee, Va.,

July 5th, 1918.

Dear Mr. Connelly:

I hope that you and yours are all well and prospering. I am getting along nicely here. My officers are kind to me and I am now chief cook here at one of the mess halls at the hospital. There are over five hundred eat at our mess hall and I am told there are over eighteen hundred patients here at the hospital and the wishes of all are to hurry up and get well so as to get into the fight and down autocracy. The doctors do all they can to get the men well and very often work over-time. We cooks are also doing our share of hard work. So you see even though we are not on the firing line "over there" we are trying to do our bit here at camp. I am told there are 250 Red Cross nurses here who care for the sick.

Wishing you lots of happiness and all the people of dear old Clearfield success I remain,

Very truly,

OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

L. D. Kerns, one of the prominent citizens of Brockport, visited with friends in town over Sunday. His principal object in coming to Curwensville was to welcome to his old home T. F. McClure, an old school mate and neighbor. Both gentlemen called on the Progress representative Sunday, he also being a school mate of the two.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. McClure, who have been in town since the 4th, left yesterday for their western home in Litchfield, Minn. This was Mrs. McClure's first visit to her husband's home town and as she expressed it, thought it was the cleanest and most beautiful village she had ever visited.

Dr. D. R. Hawkins, a son of the Rev. Hawkins, came to Curwensville last Friday expecting to spend several weeks visiting his home folks. He is a lieutenant and established at Hoboken, N. J. Yesterday he received a telegram from his superiors to report at headquarters at once and without delay. He left over the P. R. R. Monday afternoon. He was of the opinion that the unexpected summons meant nothing more nor less than that he was to be sent to France at once.

George Straitor one of the firemen at the Brick yard, is spending a few days in Pittsburgh.

Walter Fullerton left yesterday for Pittsburgh where he will spend the next two weeks circulating among relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. David F. Reid have gone to York Pa., where they will spend the next ten days visiting relatives and acquaintances.

Mrs. Calvin Bilger, who is ill in Bloom township, spent the Sabbath with her son, Harry Bilger and wife in this place.

Mrs. J. G. Fullerton accompanied her niece, Miss Agnes Reid, to Clearfield yesterday, the young lady being on her return to her home at Glenrichy after a pleasant visit with her aunt.

Samuel Caldwell, who lately returned from Washington state after an absence of over thirty years, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. L. B. Norris several days this week. He noted a number of improvements for the better about town during from the time of his sojourn in the west until his return.

Curwensville people have commenced to speculate on the question of what action the borough authorities will take on buying the Raftman water plant. Some action ought to be taken one way or the other pretty soon, either purchase the plant outright or compel the present owners to keep the line in better repair. There are several brakes in main right now that should receive attention, one being at the corner of Pine and State streets. There is one way to determine whether the rank and file of the tax payers want ownership or not and that would be to put the question to a vote. The price asked for the plant is entirely beyond reason, but we believe if the borough meant business a lower price could be secured from the company. It is also true that it would take considerable money to put the plant in first class running shape, but if the company decide to arise the water rentals, it would be just as long as it is broad. There are many in this town who would like to see this water question settled one way or the other pretty soon, and the only way that it can be done is to give them a chance to vote on it.

Even with their great record of victories the Bridgeport Eastern league leaders can't afford to falter for a second. Right at their heels are New London and Providence, and both are going strong.

TYLER SHOOTING REMAINS MYSTERY

Domenic Rizzo, a well known resident of Tyler, this county, died at the DuBois hospital at 11:45 Monday morning from the effects of a murderous assault made upon him Sunday evening by his brother in law Tony Pelatino.

The reason for the shooting appears to be more or less of a mystery.

It is declared that Sunday afternoon Rizzo, who is Mrs. Pelatino's brother, invited Pelatino into Rizzo's house for a drink but the latter refused, declaring he had money to pay debts. Last evening Rizzo lost his horse and with his four sons started to search for it. When he passed Pelatino's home, he entered it and is declared to have inquired as to Pelatino's actions in refusing to accept the drink offered in the afternoon.

It is said that Pelatino, without further cause, opened fire. Five shots were fired and four of them took effect. One hit Rizzo in the mouth, another went through the center of the neck left to right, another entered the ear and still another punctured the intestines in a half dozen places.

Both principals were Italian. Rizzo was 38 years old and is survived by his wife and seven children. Pelatino is said to be 31 and has a wife and seven children too.

The murder occurred about 9 o'clock Sunday evening and District Attorney Arnold and Sheriff Gorman were not notified of the happening until about 9 o'clock. Monday morning Sheriff Gorman started for Tyler at once and when he arrived there enlisted the services of Manager Thomas of the company store and the work of rounding up the murderer began. All the towns in the neighborhood were notified by the sheriff by telephone and finally Chief of Police Mothersbaugh of Driftwood discovered that a strange man thought to be a forger had bought a ticket for Buffalo at the Driftwood station that morning.

The authorities at Emporium were asked to search the train on its arrival there and detain the person traveling on ticket No 201. This man proved to be Pelatino who was brought back to Driftwood on the next train and when Sheriff Gorman took him into custody.

Pelatino admitted the shooting saying he shot "three, four times." He would give no reason for the shooting. Following the difficulty Pelatino shaved off his mustache, changed his clothing and walked the twenty-eight miles between Tyler and Driftwood Sunday night and early Monday morning.

With this murder Clearfield county now has on her list seven different unavenged killings, two of which are from Tyler. The entire seven were committed during the past six months. Swanton, who killed two men at Curwensville and Pelatino, however, are the only two murderers in jail. The man charged with the first Tyler killing is out on bail, as are the two suspects in the Stanley affair while the Woodland and Kelleysville murders have not been arrested as yet.

Rizzo and Pelatino were double brothers-in-law each having married the other's sister.
